DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 1-43 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-33 of U.S. Patent No. 6,728,776.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because claims 1-43 of the present application contain substantially identical limitations to claims 1-33 of U.S. Patent No. 6,728,776, except that claims 1-43 of the present application additionally specify that the user may choose to continue communicating the locally stored data or resume communication of the second data and that the second set of data is an interactive streaming data set that may be a video game.

The Examiner takes Official Notice that video games were old and well known types of interactive data streams at the time the invention was made. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been able to transmit a video game as the second data set and would have seen the benefits of doing so, since it would have allowed supplemental content to be provided from local storage in the event that insufficient data was available from the stream.

Furthermore, nonfunctional descriptive material cannot render nonobvious an invention that would have otherwise been obvious. In re Ngai, 367 F.3d 1336, 1339, 70 USPQ2d 1862, 1864 (Fed. Cir. 2004). Cf. In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983) (when descriptive material is not functionally related to the substrate, the descriptive material will not distinguish the invention from the prior art in terms of patentability). In this case, the type of data contained in the second set of data has no functional relationship to the claimed method/system.

The Examiner also takes Official Notice that prompting a user to resume a paused operation was old and well known in the art at the time the invention was made. One of ordinary skill in the art would have easily been able to implement a system that prompted the user when the suspended stream was ready to resume, and would have seen the benefits of doing so, such as allowing the user to resume the suspended stream immediately or wait until the locally stored data playback is completed, providing the user with enhanced control over their viewing experience.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

3. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

4. Claims 13-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

5. Claim 13 is directed to a "program of instructions" storable on a medium, which differs from instructions stored on a medium. Since the claim is directed to a program of instructions in a pre-stored state, which are software per se, the claim is non statutory.

6. Claims 14-24 are rejected by virtue of their dependency from claim 12 and their failure to correct the above noted deficiencies.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

7. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

8. Claim 43 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

9. With regard to claim 43, the limitation "wherein the source of the first data set is different than the source of the second data set" is unclear. Claim 42, from which claim 43 depends, requires "providing a first set of data from a source" and "providing a second set of data from the source" (emphasis added).

Allowable Subject Matter

10. Claims 1-12 and 25-42 are allowable over the prior art of record.

11. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record does not teach or fairly suggest a system/method as claimed where, during streaming of a second set of data comprising an interactive streaming data set, when there is insufficient data available for communication, providing a first set of locally stored data until the sufficient data is available for the stream, indicating to the user that communication of the second set of data may continue, and enabling the user to choose whether to resume communication of the second set of data or continue communication of the locally stored first set of data.

The prior art of record provides various automatic compensation methods when streaming data is not sufficiently available. Although the prior art teaches presenting locally stored secondary contents between time gaps in retrieval of requested documents or transactions, none of the prior art teaches displaying the secondary content and then indicating and enabling the user to choose whether to continue a data streaming when sufficient data is available again.
